Casa Publica Restaurant & Bar

Casa Publica is a tribute to the legacy of Mr Hugo A Chile, a man who made the most of the prohibition era. Born in 1905, he was only 15 when the prohibition law was passed, and he took over his father's mini-home distillery to support his family.

Hugo soon became a master of his craft and began running rum to LA, which was a profitable venture in those dark times. Despite the 9-week journey each way, he managed to establish a distribution network after only five runs and even bought his own lorry.

Today, when you step into Casa Publica, you step into Hugo's world - a world of bending rules, a little ruthlessness, a lot of rum, and an insatiable obsession for women's shoes.

We invite you to sit, relax, and experience the taste, obsessions, and lifestyle of this remarkable man who made the most of a challenging time in American history.

GAUCHO'S GRILL

In days gone by, unruly, brave and skilled horsemen wandered the wild South American grasslands hunting cattle.

These 'Gauchos' lived on a diet of meat cooked on an open grill over wood and coals.

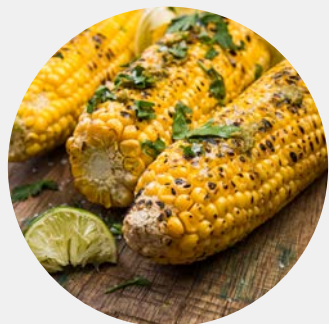

Here at Casa Publica, we want to bring a bit of that olde worlde adventurism into the 21st century recreating traditional latin dishes cooked on our wood-fired parilla in the open air of our courtyard.
